Environmental Education: Exploring the Nature of Cities

The Environmental Education Association of Indiana (EEAI) is pleased to announce the Call for Presenters for the 2024 Conference in Indianapolis, Indiana November 8 – 10, 2024.

EEAI is accepting proposals through May 17, 2024.

Submitting presenters will be notified no later than June 10, 2024.

Conference Strands:

Urban Sense of Place

Environmental Education is no longer only about taking participants out of the city but focuses on connection to urban identity and stewardship as we rediscover, reimagine, and recreate local neighborhoods and cities.

Partnerships and Participation

We can't do quality Environmental Education alone. What partnerships and collaborations have you used to engage your community across disciplines, cultures, and organizations? Share your story and your experiences.

Resilience, Regeneration and Reclamation

How is Environmental Education helping us create more resilient communities with green infrastructure, sustainability, reclaiming, and restoring our urban environment?

Indiana Children and Nature

Connecting to nature in early childhood: exploring forest and nature preschools, nature play spaces, and other methods.

Presentations are 60 minutes, either traditional or hands-on presentations designed to engage participants in teaching activities, interactive discussions, Q&A, and more. Presentations may also be panel discussions but must include a moderator and a minimum of three panelists representing different organizations, ideas, or experiences.

Presentations will be held in-person Friday, November 8 and Saturday, November 9 at the Indianapolis Zoo.
